FARE.

Taking leave of the motive, we are not yet done with the statistics. We should like to know if all this $9,000,000 in the City Bank belongs to them? and, as the committee may think we object too much by putting the question so general, we will restrict it to the limit of the country interest alone. How much of this $9,000,000 in the Boston banks belongs to the country banks? Does any of it belong there? As the committee will not be very likely to inform us, we will try to guess again.

There are in New England about 465 banks in good standing. Making a liberal allowance for those which are located in Boston, and such as the Suffolk, has never yet been able to conquer, although in former years their battles were frequent and fully fought, we will deduct 107, making 358 either its direct, or its indirect deposits through the agency of the Merchants' Bank, Providence; these deposits, as the committee inform us, are from $200 to $7500 with the Suffolk or its agent, for the redemption of their circulation. This statement of the committee may be correct, but earlier compels us to say undoubtedly. Whereas for this doubt, as we know of but one bank that deposits as low as $2000, and, we were told by a gentleman of veracity, that this bank, and far out of Boston, was required to deposit $7000 or $7500. But admitting this to be a fact, we shall be how enough to average the deposit at $1000 each, and for the 358 banks, will reduce the City specie to $7,000,000, and increase the country specie to $3,000,000. This makes us feel rather larger. We can now pay full 25 cts. on a dollar. But this is not all. Every bank has an excess of deposits most the time as we think, of the equal upon it to average, we think, of $2000 more.

If this guess is correct, then we call for $9,000,000 more. Nor is this all. We have a few Boston bills, amounting not less than a million of dollars, which of course will command the specie, and must be added to our specie fund, raising the aggregate to $1,000,000, and reducing the Boston specie to $5,200,000, quite sufficient, we admit, for all purposes except the payment of the City Bank deposits, the call for which it will be recalled, in October last, placed the Boston banks in such an unpleasant predicament; and that too, after the Suffolk had, for the second time within a few years, stopped the Rhode Island banks, in one jerk, like the heaving from a stick, from its arrangement, thereby fixing a stigma upon Rhode Island credit, which years will be required to efface. But this did not save her. She came down to us, in spite of her effort, and, out of place, and foreign as it is to the point under consideration, it is nevertheless a fact, and ought constantly to be thrown upon the Suffolk, that, acting under her advice, the Banks of Boston, and the country banks of New England, (which last could not help themselves) made the most miserable and humiliating business with the currency that ever disgraced the banking interest of this or any other country. The cloud which preceded the late financial storm, was seen in the distance for months, and no one acquainted with cause and effect in financial matters, could fail to predict the event.

Then why was the crisis springing so suddenly upon the country? It was nothing more nor less than a stillborn and determined purpose of the Suffolk and its followers to carry sail, in spite of all that threat, and we do not say the event could have been avoided, Justice requires that this should be admitted; but, when the event was certain, when it was understood by every business man, that the Suffolk made the proper preparation, and, when the Philadelphia and Baltimore banks were compelled to head beneath its weight, had the Suffolk thought more of the business of the country, and less of that foolish City pride, which prompted it not to succumb while New York refused—we say, had she then suspended, as she was afterwards compelled, she had not only saved the credit of other Rhode Island customers, as she was morally bound to do, but the step would have saved hundreds of other unfortunate merchants and manufacturers who were swept by the torrent, and millions of property from the certain grasp of modern Shylocks, who will surely get it.

NEEDLES IN THE HUMAN BODY.—An English journal tells the following singular story, regarding a man named Jones, formerly in the employ of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company. About eight years since, he felt prickling sensations in his chest, and the pains gradually grew more severe, until, seven years ago, he was compelled to resign his situation. Since then he has scarcely been able to work at all. He has experienced the most excruciating pains in his chest, as if punctured with knives, the pains being so acute at times as to cause temporary distortion of the body, and almost paralysis of every power. His arms and his legs have been similarly affected, the seat of the pain frequently shifting, but remaining fixed for some time at each point. He has been in the care of some of our leading medical men, and he has been treated for indigestion, spasms, &c., all without benefit, and for his sufferings ceased not, and he became a shadow of what he had been.

About a month ago, the pains seemed to have fixed themselves in his left leg. As ailing as large as a pigeon's egg appeared, and disappeared two or three times, accompanied by pains which rendered him unable to walk. Last week, he found that he felt some sharp substance in the middle of the swelling, and he made a cut with a needle in hopes that the same substance might then be expelled. While doing so, he felt a sharp sting from the swelling, which in his case seems to have been the point of the instrument, and after a short time, he ceased drawing it out. It was quite black, the eye being closed, and it is 1 1/2 inch long. Of course, Mr. Jones has not seen it, but the pains he has so long suffered are now all gone.

Two women had a fight in church, at Exeter, N. H., last Sunday. Cause—good only.

New Jersey has come short, this year, on the peach crop.

Cable hats are advertised for sale in New Jersey.

MONDAY MORNING, Aug. 30, 1858.

Liberia.

The Republic of Liberia occupies a most interesting position among modern governments. The result of philanthropy, it has so far succeeded admirably, and a brilliant destiny seems to await it in the future. Its national existence has been acknowledged by Great Britain, France, Brazil, Prussia, and Belgium. Upon its coast, stretching more than five hundred miles, the slave trade has been entirely suppressed. The colony, composed chiefly of colored men from the United States, has been greatly prospered in agriculture, commerce, and civil affairs; while, by its instrumentality, a christianized civilization has been planted in Africa, which has already brought under its influence numerous native tribes, and which is daily extending its work of blessing.

The present position of the negro, in the great human family, is, it must be confessed, one of inferiority and of sorrow. The dawn of primitive christianity in northern Africa, clouded by Mahomedan error, and the noon of art shrouded in ignorance and barbarism, Africa, in spite of the splendid memorials along the banks of the Nile, and in spite of Origen and Augustin, has become the hunting ground of cruel beasts, and the battle field of savage tribes, and the market of slaves. The children of Africa, carried into slavery in other lands, have suffered the severest bondage; and our own country, notwithstanding its boasted love of freedom, has done more than its share of such iniquitous business. It must be admitted, also, that, even in our free States, where we loudly disapprove of slavery, the negro is yet looked upon as an inferior cast, as being unfit for social relationship with the whites, and as even an outcast from equal civil and religious rights. True, there are some who, in theory and practice, take a more philanthropic view, admitting the negro to the brotherhood of man, and extending to him the hand of justice and friendship; but, the general prejudice remains, wrong, it may be admitted, yet still undestroyed.

The question, then, is still left, both to the white and colored races of our country,—what may best be done under the circumstances? We at once find, in Liberia, an answer to this question. It is the duty of the white race of our country to foster the young Republic, already so prosperous, by emancipating the slaves, and by aiding the whole colored population to emigrate to Liberia; and it is the privilege of the colored race to find in Liberia a congenial home, where every social, civil, and religious right may be possessed, and where life may be crowned with abundant success.

TELEGRAPHIC INSTRUMENTS.—As the electricians are supposed to be experimenting at Exeter Bay and Valencia, the various recording instruments in use, it is of interest to know what are the chief differences between them.

The Morse Instrument, in common use from the first, in this country, transmits messages by the alternate breaking and reuniting the electric current. The current allowed to flow a moment, produces a dot; if a little longer, a line. The operator taps on a single key and the messages are recorded by an alphabet composed of combinations of lines and dots, thus:—

In the hands of an expert, the speed of this instrument is about twenty words a minute. The Cooke and Wheatstone Instrument is the one that, until lately, has been generally used in England. A needle on a dial plate revolves, pointing out the letters, which are inscribed around the circumference like the hours on the face of a clock. This is a much more intelligible process to outsiders, but it is slow, accomplishing, at the best, only about fourteen words a minute.

The House Instrument prints the message in Roman capitals, on a long strip of paper, by the revolution of a type wheel, the operator playing on a key board like that of a piano, with a key for each letter. The printing is done by clock work, the use of the electric current being to preserve equal time, so that the letters of one machine may correspond to those of the other. This instrument prints twenty-five to thirty words a minute.

The Hughes Instrument is a combination of the Morse and House Instruments. In Morse instruments two or three pulsations of the electric current are required to indicate one letter. In the House instrument, it requires from one to twenty-eight pulsations. In the Hughes instrument it requires but a single pulsation for each letter. The mechanism by which this is accomplished is simple, though the principle on which it is based is complex. The type wheels at the respective stations revolve to print the message, and their revolutions are governed by vibrating springs. These springs cause the type to revolve in exactly the same time, there is an acoustic principle involved, so that two springs which give the same number of vibrations, while vibrating, vibrate the same number of times per second. The springs are, therefore, chosen and regulated by sound. This instrument, it is evident, combines both time and electric power, its exceeding sensitiveness to the least perceptible pulsation of the electric currents, adapted especially for long lines and submarine cables. It is capable of writing forty words a minute, with about one tenth the battery power of other instruments, and sends messages both ways at once! At least in its inventor's claims, at it is to be tested on the Atlantic Cable.

Supreme Court—August Term.

Present, Chief Justice Ames, and Justices

Howarth and Brayton.

The case of Stephen N. Fellows, vs. Isaac

Peck, which has been on trial for three days, was argued to the Jury by Joseph M. Blake, Esq., for the defendant, and Charles C. Van Zandt, Esq., for the plaintiff, the Jury returned a verdict of twenty-five dollars damages for the plaintiff.

SATURDAY MORNING.

The jury were discharged until Thursday morning next, and the Bill of Exceptions from the Court of Common Pleas, Joseph

S. Clarke and wife vs. the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Newport, was heard by the Court and decision reserved. Paine and Sheffield for Clarke—Potter, Van Zandt and Cranston & Son for the City.

The indictment for rape, State vs. Harvey Magennady, Sheffield appearing for the Attorney General and Potter for the defendant, was tried, and the jury failed to agree.

The Court adjourned till next Thursday.

ROWING AS AN EXERCISE.—"An ounce of preventative is worth a pound of cure."

So has said somebody, and so say we. Whatever tends to chase away disease and give health and vigor to the human frame, should be published to the world in order that the human family may avail themselves of its advantages. One of the principal authorities of the science of physiology, Dr.

Andrew Combe, asserts that there is no exercise, without exception, which tends to develop so many muscles of the body, and so equally in their action, as that of rowing.

We have endeavored before to impress this fact upon the minds of our readers, and especially the ladies, who stand most in need of this sort of exercise, and we now refer to it again, with the endorsement of high medical authority. Such exercise may not be fashionable—we wish it were, for then we should have more hope of seeing it followed; but let us throw fashion, in this particular, at least, to the winds, and attend to that which shall impart health and vigor to our systems.

The people of Newport are favored above most other places in the opportunity afforded for engaging in this exercise. With the salt water almost at our doors, there is scarcely any time, in good weather, when it is not suitable for ladies to embark in a row-boat. Do this, ye invalids, and throw medicine to the dogs.

WE learn that our esteemed fellow townsman, C. C. Van Zandt, Esq., will, by invitation, read a Poem before the Philo-anthropic and United Brothers' Literary Society of Brown University, to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, in Rev. Dr. Hall's Church, Providence. The Oration will be by Prof. J. B. Angell, of Brown University.

Col. Van Zandt possesses a happy combination of faculties, and is a gentleman, a wit, and a scholar, and the listening to the reading of the Poem in question will be an intellectual treat of the rarest description —doing honor both to himself and the occasion.

Whether it is that our neighbor H.

YOUNG "round the corner" of Thames &

Mill streets, counts largely upon our Episcopal taste, or from other causes, we know not; but certain it is that of every fresh invoice of fruit at his store the two individuals managing the Editorial department of the News have a pretty extensive "taste." Saturday, in the absence of the Senior, we were made the recipient of a beautiful supply, consisting of pineapples, plums, peaches, &c. As we know they would not "keep" till our worthy contemporary's return, we took measures at once to "save" them, in the manner most agreeable to our taste.

Keep me fruit, your taste to suit,

Of every kind in season.

Yours has in store, and what is more,

Is never "out of season."

In his charges, and what you purchase of him you may rely upon as a first rate article, YOUNG men like him should be encouraged to continue among us, as they are always fruitful of good.

Daniel Rogers, Esq., of New London claims to have a Bible in his possession, which belonged to the Rev. John Rogers, who was burned at the stake 303 years ago. It is not divided into verses, and differs in its division of chapters from the King James edition.

THE Restorative of Prof. O. J. WOOD. In restoring hair perfectly and permanently has never yet had a rival. Volume after volume might be given from all parts of the world and from the most intelligent to prove that "it is a perfect Restorative." But read the following:—

"THE HAIR.—People have for centuries been afflicted with bald heads, and the only remedy, heretofore known, has been those abominable wigs. By a recent discovery of Prof. or Wood these articles are being dispensed with, but a great many persons still imagine them, because they have been so often imposed upon by Hair Tonics of different kinds. To all such persons we earnestly make the request that they will try once again, for in Wood's Restorative there is no such thing as fail. We know of a lady who was bald, who used the article a short time and her head is now covered completely with the finest and most beautiful curls imaginable.

We know of numerous cases where hair was rapidly falling out, which it restored in greater perfection than it ever had before.

It is also without doubt one of the best articles for keeping the hair in good condition, making it soft and glossy, removing dandruff, and has proved itself the greatest enemy to all the ills that hair is heir to.

It is the duty of every one to improve their personal appearance, though some may differ in regard to the ways of doing it; but every one will admit that a beautiful head of hair, either in man or woman, is an object which no one should desire, and there are no means that should be left untaken to obtain such a compliment. [Woman's Advocate, Philadelphia.]

Cochecton, Ohio, Nov. 17, 1856.

O. J. WOOD & CO.—Gents: As I have been engaged in selling your Hair Restorative the last season for one of your local agents (R. M.

Lockinson), and having experienced the beneficial effects of it myself, I would like to obtain an agency for the State of Ohio or some State in the West, should you wish to make such an arrangement, as I am convinced there is nothing equal to it in the United States, for restoring the hair. I have been engaged in the drug business for several years, and have found nothing that restores the hair, but have found nothing that restores

the hair, but have found nothing that restores

COAST SURVEY OFFICE,

June 15th, 1858.

Sir: I have the honor to report that a to the southward and westward of the "Hothorn," and in the track of vessels going from San Francisco to Bonita, has been examined and the vicinity sounded by Lieut. Comdr. R. M.

Cuyler, U. S. N., Assistant in the Coast

Survey. The following is an extract from a
